Join Cutthroat Chapter at Lake Lehow in Littleton

This is a wonderful opportunity for Beginners to learn to fish, and for a Family-Friendly Fishing Outing close to home.

It's a stocked private lake - no fishing license is needed
Catch and Release only - no worries about the fish you catch
We fish from shore - no waders or fishing boots
We supply water and soft drinks

We provide coaching on casting, catching, and releasing fish
Bring your fishing rod and flies with barbless hooks – if you don't have equipment, no worries, we can set you up

EASY-PEASY! JUST SHOW UP!

Entry to Lake Lehow is from the east side of the Waterton Canyon Parking Lot. Take the Wadsworth exit south to Waterton Road, left into the parking lot. Veer to the right as you enter (toward van/trailer parking) and drive east down the dirt road to the green gate in back.

A CCTU representative will be at the gate at 4pm and for an additional 5-10 minutes. The gate chain will then be "soft locked" for any late arrivals. If you arrive after 4pm, please redo the chain "soft lock" before proceeding to the lake.

COME FISH WITH US - MOVING WATERS

This day-trip activity is for you if you want:

- · To meet people in the chapter.
- · To explore Colorado rivers.
- Help with an aspect of your fishing game.

On August 24th seven folks made the long two and a half plus hour trip out to Gypsum Ponds to fish the Eagle River. We all arrived at Gypsum Ponds SWA a little past 10:30 due to a late start from the T-Rex Park and Ride because several people got tied up in Denver rush hour traffic. Gypsum Ponds SWA was a great option with a lot of fishable water and no crowds. The water temperatures were a bit high pushing 60 degrees which kept the fishing a bit slow. However nearly everyone had a fish story or two to share by the end of the days with both dry flies and nymphs being equally effective. The blue skies turned to afternoon thundershowers around 4 pm chasing everyone back to our rides. The group headed home about 4:30 and everyone agreed that the long trip over to the Eagle was well worth it. Thanks to Dr. Allen Adinoff for the great pictures.

The beautiful day produced a nice fish for Allen.

Lunch was a good time to swap stories and tactics before heading back out for the afternoon.

For our September trip we are closer to home and fishingClear Creek!

STREAM Girl is Trout Unlimited's watershed STEM program for girls that builds confidence and breaks down barriers in science and the outdoors. Through the eyes of a scientist, artist and angler, girls make a personal connection to their home waters.

Every person is a citizen of her watershed, and Trout Unlimited has partnered with Girl Scouts USA to show what that means to us. By visiting a local stream and having the opportunity to observe it as scientists, anglers, and artists, girls will get the complete picture of what their stream could mean to them.

Over the course of multiple sessions, Trout Unlimited volunteers lead the Girl Scouts in observing a stream, collecting flow data, sampling macroinvertebrates (aka aquatic bugs), fly tying, and fly casting. Each day also gives the girls time to intimately explore their natural surroundings and record their thoughts, feelings, and observations in their handbooks

2023 CCTU Board Retreat Recap

As you know, your board holds a late summer weekend retreat to get away, do a bit of planning and a lot of fishing. This year we met in Almont, CO at Three Rivers Resort to fish the Taylor and Gunnison Rivers. As I am sure you know, the Taylor starts high up in the Rockies and descends for almost two miles before emptying into the Taylor Reservoir. From the Reservoir the Taylor makes its way through Taylor Canyon for about 20 miles before meeting the east River to form the Gunnison River near the town of Almont. If you have not fished there, it is well worth the drive.

Friday John and Allen took the scenic route driving over Cottonwood Pass from Buena Vista and fishing the Taylor above the reservoir. The river is not large there, but it provides lot of holes that hold fish if you get the flies down to where they are.

View of Taylor Reservoir from Cottonwood Pass

Saturday morning we all headed out on a float trip down the Gunnison. Putting in where the two rivers come together in three drift boats, we floated south taking out north of the town of Gunnison. Fishing was a bit slow in the morning but picked up as the day went on. Discussions about who caught the largest fish are still on going and may never come to an agreement.

Sunday Allen, Barry and John drove to access points below the town of Gunnison to wade fish the river. Unfortunately, we were not able to cross a swollen side channel on the path from the parking lot to the river. Although a few fish were found, we spent more time hiking than fishing. Scott and Mark chose to again float the river above town and had much more successful day.

Headed downriver

Monday we packed up and headed home. All in all we had a great time enjoying the fellowship of other board members and landing a few fish. Colorado has lots of great places to explore, hike and fish. Almont is one you should try!

A Trip to Visit Famous Waters of the West

In May of this year, Shannon and I (Mike Myers) of CCTU took a rare opportunity for a once in a lifetime tour of some of the fabled moving waters of the mountain west. This opportunity arose when I changed jobs and Shannon talked me into creating a multi-week gap between these jobs, which is something I've never done in my multi-decade career, and in retrospect, highly recommend.

So, Shannon set to making all the arrangements while I was still securing the new job, hence, I was virtually useless in the planning process (and frankly, I often am) except to make a list of the waters that were on my bucket list: The Green, the Madison, the Paradise Valley Spring Creeks DePuy's and Armstrong, the Big Horn, and the North Platte. We would rent a car and essentially make a giant, 1500-mile loop from Arvada, around Yellowstone National Park and back home.

After securing a rental car large enough to carry our luggage and enough fishing gear for four people (if you know me, you understand that I generally pack like it's the end of the world), I outfitted it with my newly acquired RiverQuiver and we set off for one of my favorite western rivers, the Green River. Being early May, we would be catching the tail end of the Blue Wing Olive hatch. We had a great day floating the river on those deep, drop-shot, balloon rigs and brought some healthy fish to net. We even got a double, though, these were not the biggest fish of the day.

We spent the next day walk-wading the river and were able to bring quite a few fish to the surface throughout the day. Nothing quite like tricking a trout with a surface imitation. Shannon had three on before I even got my rod rigged. The third fish was met with a tepid response of "That's nice, honey", as I hadn't even finished rigging my rod yet! A good start to the trip, to be sure.

The next stop was the Madison river near Ennis, MT. Being in the early part of spring, the river was high and off color and our guide decided the best section was the upper one rather than the section below the dam. I deferred to his expertise, having never been here before, but I wish I would have made a stronger case for the section below the dam. We must have caught 40 or more whitefish in the upper section of the Madison. And that's not necessarily a bad thing; it just wasn't what we were expecting. And truth be told, the Rocky Mountain Bonefish does fight hard!

From Ennis, MT, we made a short drive to Livingston, MT where we would be based for three days on the legendary spring creeks of DePuy's and Armstrong's. Livingston is a darling, welcoming, and historic town built by the gold-rush pioneers. We stayed in a historic hotel called The Murray, which was home to the likes of Wild Bill Hickok and where the legendary movie The Wild Bunch was filmed by director Sam Peckinpah. Everything is in walking distance and in addition to the history, there are some great restaurants there. Now, back to the fishing!

DePuy's and Armstrong's Spring Creeks were wonderful and felt a lot more comfortable than the 50-mile riffle that is the Madison. These Spring Creeks are slightly smaller in breadth than the Deckers section of the South Platte, for comparison. We had a wonderful guide there that got both Shannon and I into some beautiful rainbows on the small flies we are used to. The only detractor was a relatively consistent wind that apparently often blows through the valley.

From Livingston and the Spring Creeks, we headed east to Fort Smith, MT and the Big Horn. We arrived at what would turn out to be the tail end of a wind front that had been harassing the area for a couple of days (including the Livingston area, I discovered). The following day on the river was classic mountain weather with soft, puffy, bright white clouds on a perfect blue sky background. The Big Horn is another very wide river and was a bit tricky for us to manage. Thankfully, we had a great, although somewhat stoic, guide that got us into more great rainbows and browns. There was one eddy we got out of the boat for that required a fun, water-loaded 30-foot cast with a nymphing rig where I hooked 4 nice fish on about 6 casts. It was really exciting and even garnered a guide compliment, which I think I'm still reveling in!

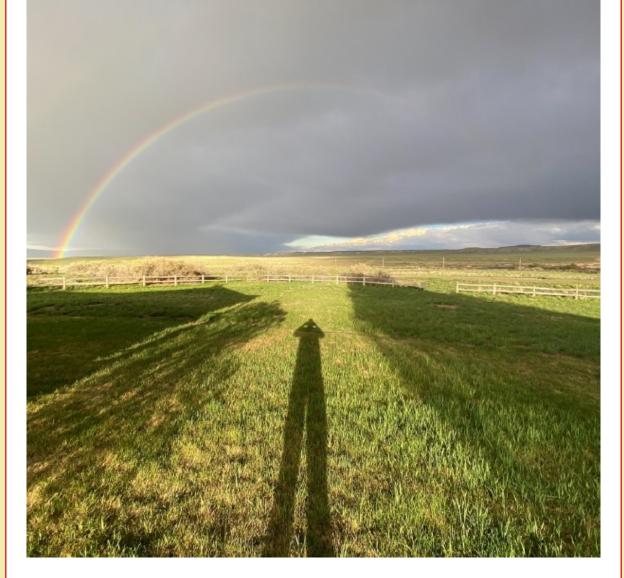

The final stop on the Epic Trip was Alcova, WY where we would spend the day on the North Platte River. In retrospect, it worked out that we saved the best day for the last. Shannon and I believe we conservatively caught 20 fish each (I consulted with the guide on this, too) but we stopped counting pretty early as we got into fish right off the bat. Additionally, we had an unscheduled stop of about 45 minutes on the bank near an eagle's nest waiting out a very electrified anvil-cloud storm. It even hailed on us while we were huddled in some short shrubbery, far from any tall trees. And the icing on the cake was twofold, Shannon landed a beautiful Snake River Cutthroat just before the take-out and I helped the guide bag his first dry-fly take of the year, just before the storm shut everything down.

All in all, it was an Epic trip/tour of only some of the fabled rivers of the mountain west. I have several more still on my list and hope that I don't have to wait again for a break in between career moves or retirement before taking the next one.

If you have any questions about our arrangements for the trip, I'd be happy to share them with you. Just reach out to me via email (not.that.mike.myers@gmail.com).
